POTATO RAISING.

The following article, written by Haines Brown, of Pennsylvania, for the Country Gentleman, may be profitably read by our readers. It contains suggestions and ideas that may be worth

"I have never raised potatoes on a large scale, but usually raise about three acres each year, never paying any attention to the price, but in the long run, find the potato crop the best paying one we raise. However, when potatoes are extremely low and a drag on the market, we as a rule plant largely, as the majority of the farmers cry, Potatoes don't pay! and therefore raise what they need for family use only. Generally by the time the crop is harvested, the price has advanced to a paying one, and finds such farmers with none to sell.

"We always plant our potatoes on the ground that was in corn the year pre vious; selecting low, but thoroughly drained ground, then give it a heavy cost of barnyard or hog manure in the late fall or early winter. The ground is then left until planting time, and tha is whenever the ground is sufficientl warm to ensure a speedy growth, which mostly happens about the 20th of April We always endeavor to plant as early as we can to avoid the bugs, as every one knows that they are more destructive to late crops and weak hills in the row We now select a pure variety of a kind and have a reputation on the market and cut them to a single eye, if the pieces are large—never more than two eyes. Then we start to the field with plow, potatoes and some good commercial phosphate, containing a large per cent. of potash. We now start to plow down a cornstock row, and the dropper then follow, dropping the pieces at the land side of the furrow at a distance o about fifteen inches apart. Then another man follows with the fertilizer sowing it as near as he can to the next furrow to be plowed, or the one that is to cover the potato.

"We then plant in every third furrow until done. If the ground is mellow ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND No. 1, 2 and (which it should be) a heavy relies in a large lot of Lumber of Shiring Les, also (which it should be,) a heavy roller is run over the patch, and it is left for about ten days and then thoroughly harrowed with a good spike harrow—at least three times. After we see them peeping through the ground, we repeat the harrowing, thus destroying all weed: that will in any time interfere with the growth of the plant until it is large enough for the single cultivator, which we often use and as long as we can, or until after blossoms appear. I want no shovel plow in my patch, as level culture in nine cases out of ten gives the best crop. We have tried raising pota toes about every other way in planting, but the above gives us best satisfaction Of course, attention must be paid to the bugs, or a day or two of neglect may let them ruin the most promising crop." The Poultry Yard.

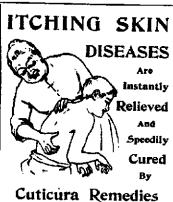

EDS. COUNTRY GENTLEMAN,-After several years' experience in handling different breeds of poultry, I am fully satisfied that to make a success of pro-ducing fresh eggs for market, and to person must have two or three differe breeds of fowls-having some for winter layers and for producing large, plump chickens for market, such as the Wyan dotte and the Plymouth Rock breeds and for spring and summer layers the White or Brown Leghorn. Thus far. my Plymouth Rock bens are laying more eggs than my Leghorn, but I think that the smaller breed will lay more eggs during the year than the large breed. A neighbor of mine has a breed about the size of the Plymouth Rock, called the Rumpless, without any long tail feathers, that are excellent winter lavers, and are also a good general-purpose fowl. I find that the Brown Leghorns are more subject to sickness than the large breeds but do not find them non-sitters, and they make excellent mothers. The principal disease among my Leghorns is roup, not withstanding I am very particular not to have a draught of air upon them, and keep their quarters well Last fall I sent away for a good supply of poultry food, as I thought by what I had gathered here and there from agricultural papers, that by feeding dried scrap, bone meal, &c., I would be blessed with an abundance of fresh eggs all winter; but, thus far, my expectations have not been fully realized. Not many days ago I read that a man was feeding, for a noon ration, clover hay cut fine b running it through a feed-cutter, and then scalding the same for about an hour, giving it to his hens when quite hot, with the addition of a little wheat bran so as to get them to eat it.

After feeding the cut clover preparer After feeding the cut clover prepared as above for about one week, my hears began to lay, and I think that hereafter I will not invest much money in anything but crushed oyster shells. The poultry business, like many other things, requires close care and attention to make a success of it and convergence of the conve a success of it, and many who are engaged in it will find to their sorrow that all is not gold that glitters.—E. L B. STEEL ROOFING

The Horse Market Improving. The following from a Chicago stock journal will prove interesting reading to many of our readers who are engaged in raising horses for market: "The month of March is usually an active time in the home market, but the activity now witnessed exceeds all past records. Buyers are fairly climbing over each other to find good horses, and the weekly arrivals are the largest ever known. Not many weeks ago the horse trade was unqualifiedly dull at declining prices, but now buyers are here from all over the country, and sales show an average advance of $15 per head over the prices paid a month ago. Western farmers who have horses to sell are taking advantage of the present active trade, and great numbers of horses are constantly arriving from Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri, fully three-fourths of all the horses that are narketed here coming from these states, Draft horses, as usual, comprise a large proportion of the arrivals, and such animals are anywhere from $15 to $30 higher than a month ago. Chunks are $10 to $15 higher than a month ago and sales are lively. The export trade is just now a highly important feature of the horse market, and this has been the case for several weeks, and is likely to continue a powerful factor in the situation. Eng-Legislature, approved May, 19th, A. D., 1893, it will be seen that all Deeds and lish, Scotch and French buyers are numerous day after day, and many of the best drivers and smooth chunks weight passage of this Act, SHALL be recorded in ing from 1,300 to 1,450 pounds fall into the office for the Recording of Deeds, etc., best drivers and smooth chunks weightheir hands. Way of Managing the Farm. I do not claim to be entirely original in my management of farm affairs, nor lo I adopt everything others may put forward as the best guide to success but I do claim to keep constantly on the utlook for the adoption of everything ossible to help along the work and get a living for myself and family, which for ne years has never been less than six. and now numbers nine, and this too off of twenty eight acres of land, located two miles from a thrifty and growing village. I am engaged in other busin to some extent, from which is derived a mall portion of the income, but farming is the main business and upon which depend mostly for support. And here I wish to say in my way of farming I have land enough and find all the work I can do and the childred too, and all the while can use extra work that could be done at a profit. Last year my small farm produced sore in value than many one hundred acre farms near me. Nothing is done in slipshod way. Crops are put in the ground in shape, and attended to carefuly and throughly till stored for use. Too much land prevents a majority of farmers from doing this, so essential in farm management. Living near a good market is a wonderful help in the sale of all kinds of vegetables which can be produced at a great profit. My onion crop last year gave me at the rate of eight hundred dollars per acre, cabbage four hundred dollars, and beets four hundred. The sweet corn for the canning factory paid well, and my bean crop was just splended, all because the ground was well prepared and thoroughly cultivated. On one little patch of just twelve square rods I raised twenty bushels of table potatoes that were extra in quality, a portion of which were sold for ten cents per bushel above market price. Could have sold them all, but I tarm affords. I keep but little stock, only enough to do the farm work and furnish the milk and butter required for home use, selling he greater part of my hay and purchasing dressing at the village, also super phosphate. It pays me far better than to feed the hay to stock of any kind. I know it, and that is sufficient for me. In feeding out one ton of hay on the farm, I get two dollars worth of dressing. In seiling the hay, I get on an average ten dollars in cash and enough left to buy the dressing. Of course I do the hauling, but it is a part of farm work and work too that pays a good profit. I spread all dressing on the furrow and

ing super phosphate in the hill for potatoes, beans and corn. There is too much work thrown away in applying dressing in bills as our fathers used do. I give the garden a generous supply of different kinds of fertilizers and it generously responds.—Germantown Tele-Fattening Young Cattle. A practical feeder of cattle, after de liberate consideration of the question, gives it as his opinion that no man can afford in these times to feed the young steers more than one winter. While in ions as to details of the business which are pertinent. The best success is had n fattening "long yearlings" for market by feeders who keep the cows and he anticipates the slack method of those who sell their calves at weaning time by contracting, about time of birth, to buy the calves at five months of age by th have three-fourths of its mother's milk and all the bran and cats it will eat, and further suggests that the milk supply, GENUINE CHINESE WATER LILY

as well as the calf's growth, will be enhanced if the cow also is fed a good ration of bran daily. The price paid per pound is graded. The weight at five months must not be less than 350 pounds 400 pounds or more he is paid at the rate of $1 per 100 pounds more than if constantly on hand. Experienced and Communication of the state of the pounds at five months of age is cheaper at $5 per 100 pounds than one weighing 300 pounds at the same age is at $3 per > 100 pounds. It is his opinion also that any calf four months old or over, if his weight is 100 pounds per month, is worth as much per pound as the highest priced To me his estimates seem entirely reasonable, for the weight of eighty to one hundred pounds per month implies that the calf has been thrifty from birth. This almost insures continued thrift, as well as almost a centainty that it will weigh 1,200 pounds or more at eighteen onths of age. The feeder who secures such thrifty calves is very fortunate indeed Calves bought in September can be crowded fourteen months, making a gain of 800 pounds, and can certainly be made more profitable than two-year-old teers costing twice the money.

A man can make the same profit from $20 invested in a calf that can be made from $40 invested in a three-year-old steer, and can do it in nearly the same ime.—Chatangua Farmer.

It now would appear, says the Baltimore Sun, that the whole design of the Lexow investigation was to elect the Republican ticket and then to perpetuate the abuses disclosed in the interes of the Republican party. This being the case the honest reformers who criticised Governor-Flower for vetoing the bill to appropriate $25,000 for the Lexow committee should send in their apologies.

THE United States treasury is in a etter condition than it has been for a long time. The gold reserve is $90.643.-307 and the net cash balance in addition is $97.278,954, making a total, of $187,-917,261. How much better the position of the treasury is now than at the close of February, 1893, when President Harrison was about ending his wasteful the fact that the general balance in the MONUMENTS or TOMBSTONES treasury then was but $124,128,087, as they wish to have erected in the spring. She against the $187,917.261 just mentione is prepared to furnished the best as the general balance in March, 1895.

Influences of Women. That women as a class control the noral forces of a community is admit ted by many philosophers. They do so directly and indirectly-directly by their ives and example they set; indirectly by their influence over men, and more especially their influence over children. Nearly every good man has been in uenced in his youth by a good mother or by one who stood to him in the relation of a mother. It is true that some women exert an evil influence over men but they are relatively few in number The great majority, as sweethearts, sisers, wives or mothers, or in all their reations, influence men to live true and honorable lives, inspire them with ambition and make them in their turn, but as secondary agents, moral forces in the mmunity. Men seldom exhibit a similar influence over women. They some-times degrade, but do seldom uplift. Assuming that woman represents the moral force of society, some pessimists bave become alarmed lest the development of her intellect and independence hould lessen her wholesome influence. In individual cases this unfortunate result may follow, but there is nothing in the nature of intellectual culture to make it a necessary sequence. Our sweethearts, wives and mothers, if they remain womanly, will be all the more agreeable companions, guides and friends if they are cultivated in mind, refined in taste and freed from traditions of dependence. The unit of civilized society is not the man or the woman, but the family, of which, in spite of law or fiction, the mother is the true head. As long as she retains that proud position and cultivates home ties, while discharging home duties, intellectual culture will promote rather than lesson her Sunday School Libraries moral influence. Humorous writers picture "the coming woman" as deserting her home for the activities of business life, for the club and for the diversions which the present man too often seeks. and it is a matter of course that if the coming should commit such folly her moral influence would disappear or be perverted. But there is no just reason for apprehending that any such result would follow what is now an accomplished fact in American communities, 'the emancipation of women.'' Some of the most active women in affairs for the promotion of the public welfare are also among the best of housewives, giv-ing full attention to their family duties and using only their leisure hours for the moral, charitable or reform work that attracts the notice of the community. No doubt there are some women as there are many men) who, being carried away by the fascinations of a public career, may be led to neglect home for public duties, but they will not necessarily be a controlling number. The motherly instincts of womankind may be expected to keep the coming woman true to her home duties, and culture, training—even hard business experience Hardware Store -will give her a clearer sense of her moral duties and better fit her to discharge them for the benefit of that de- Hardware, pendent creature, the growing or coming man. The outlook is not alarming, but hopeful. It is a well-known fact that some of the most noted and best of mothers have been intellectually great and correspondingly forceful as moral teachers and guides, and also that it is not necessary to imitate man in dress or nanners to establish equality with him. The mannish woman is indeed but a poor imitation of what the coming woman is to be, for if she is to be educated, intellectually strong and socially independent, she will also be original enough to avoid imitating man in the entials of costumes. Those of s who remember with gratitude the gentle, heipful influence of our mothers over our morals, the inspiring influence of sweetheart and wife, will certainly

Purify jars from grease by soaking in strong soda water. Lime water ought to be kept in the ouse regularly as soon as hot weather comes. It prevents the milk curdling, and, if used n the proportion of a teaspoonful of ime water to a tumblerful of milk it adds a sweeter flavor.

"Fear is the greatest enemy to the complexion of the American women," says Miss Lindley. "We fear that we will not make the train; we fear that if we do make it our friend who is to meet us will not come; we fear it will rain and spoil our good clothes; we fear it will clear off, and we shall be sorry we wore our old clothes. And so it goes, Amerian women worry too much. If you continually contract certain muscles of the face, nature belps you, and makes he contraction permanent. So the first rule for a smooth skin, free from wrinkles, is, beware of unpleasant facial

After you have been frying doughnuts or fritters or anything of that kind, shave off a few slices of potatoes when you are done with the grease and drop them in the sizzing fat; let them cook an instant, and then set on the back of he stove to cool very slowly. In the course of half an hour remove to a place to cool more rapidly, and just before it gets beyond the pouring stage strain through a cloth into a clean jar. A SURE CURE FOR THE CARPET BUG. The following recipe is invaluable, according to the Woman's World, for a sure death to the carpet bug or buffale moth: One ounce of alum, one ounce of chloride of zinc, three ounces of salt Mix with two quasts of water and let it stand overnight in a covered vessel. In the morning pour it carefully into another vessel so that all sediments may be left behind. Dilute this with two quarts of water and apply by sprinkling the edges of the carpet for the distance of foot from the wall. This is all that necessary. They will leave boxes, bed and any other resort which has been sprinkled with the solution on the shortest possible notice, and nothing will b iniured in texture or color.
